

GLOBAL REFUGEE FORUM 2023

Multistakeholder Pledge on Economic Inclusion and Social Protection

TECHNICAL GUIDANCE NOTES: LAW AND POLICY

Background:

Law reform pledges aim to build enabling environments in States for socio-economic inclusion of refugees, other forcibly displaced and stateless people, promoting equal access to economic opportunities, employment, entrepreneurship, decent work, and inclusive government social protection systems. This includes effective access to the right to work, rights at work, and social rights through providing access to labour markets and to decent work, and to contributory and non-contributory social protection systems to address poverty and vulnerabilities across the lifecycle. Equally important are related rights such as freedom of movement; access to individual registration, documentation, and legal status; freedom of association and collective bargaining; access to justice and judicial remedies against abusive working conditions; as well as access to productive land, bank accounts, and other financial and business development services.

Policy pledges will assist States and local governments to implement national legislative frameworks, prepare for future needs and shocks, as well as promote development strategies that mutually benefit refugees, other forcibly displaced and stateless people, and host communities. The principle of non-discrimination and equality of opportunity and treatment, in particular gender equality, should apply. Law and/or policy reforms should be developed in consultation with forcibly displaced, stateless and host communities to ensure they are targeted to needs. Other stakeholders, such as international organizations, development actors and civil society, can support building a strong legal framework and developing inclusive policies through providing for example technical assistance; medium- and long-term financial and programme support; training; as well as data and evidence.¹

Goal:

Over the next four years, at least 15 States—with the support of relevant stakeholders—adopt and/or strengthen laws and policies supporting economic inclusion and/or social protection.

Aspirational Outcome:

One million refugees, other forcibly displaced and stateless people, and members of host communities gain equal access to economic inclusion; employment and decent work; training and lifelong learning; financial services; and access social protection through strengthened and inclusive legislative and policy frameworks.

Impact indicators:

1. Number of States that make law and/or policy reforms to adopt and/or strengthen laws and/or policies supporting economic inclusion.
2. Number of States that make law and/or policy reforms to adopt and/or strengthen laws and/or policies supporting inclusion in national social protection programmes.
3. Number of States that explicitly include refugees, other forcibly displaced and stateless people in their national development plans and sector plans, including, in particular, sector plans for social protection, employment generation, and in technical vocational education and training (TVET).
4. Number of bilateral and multilateral development partners that explicitly include refugees, other forcibly displaced and stateless people in their high-level, regional, and country-level international development co-operation strategies.
5. Number of refugees, other forcibly displaced and stateless people, and members of host communities, disaggregated by age and sex at a minimum, that gain access to economic inclusion, employment and decent work, training and lifelong learning, – as a result of law and/or policy reforms (to the extent possible, this indicator will also be disaggregated into sectors).
6. Number of refugees, other forcibly displaced and stateless people, and members of host communities, disaggregated by age and sex at a minimum, that gain access to national social protection programmes– as a result of law and/or policy reforms (to the extent possible, this indicator will also be disaggregated into sectors).

Pledging Guidance:

- Law and policy reform pledges should be SMART (specific, measurable, attainable, realistic, and timebound) and linked to one or more impact indicators.
- We encourage synergy and complementarity between pledging partners for the development of quantifiable multi-year, multi-stakeholder pledges where the whole is greater than the sum of the parts. Multi-stakeholder pledges can be made at the local, country, regional, and international levels. For accountability and reporting purposes, the contribution of each stakeholder to a multi-stakeholder pledge should be clearly defined. Multi-stakeholder pledge development and pledge pre-matching can be facilitated under the framework of this pledge.

- Law and policy reform pledges should adhere to the principle of non-discrimination and equality of opportunity and treatment, in particular gender equality.
- The anticipated month and year of completion of the law or policy reform should be specified in the pledge.
- The objective of the law or policy reform should be clearly specified and quantified in the pledge by adding the number of target population in the country.
- States pledging to adopt/enact/amend a law/decreed/act/regulation/policy should specify the name/code/year (if available) of the instrument in the pledge.
- States pledging to withdraw a reservation and/or declaration to the 1951 Refugee Convention or its 1967 Protocol, or the 1954 Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons, should specify the full text and year of the reservation and/or declaration in the pledge.
- For non-state actors, commitments could either be: (i) a matching pledge to support the development of a State's law and/or policy adoption/amendment or (ii) a pledge to support a State's implementation of a law and/or policy. Support could be given through technical assistance and/or funding, among others.
- In addition to state pledges, regional and bilateral pledges are also welcome.
- Pledge commitments shall seek a "do no harm" approach and endeavor to assess risks and mitigate potential negative effects of their actions.

Illustrative examples of pledges:

(Please note: This is a non-exhaustive list of illustrative examples for pledges. These examples need to be adapted to each national legislative framework depending on existing laws and policies and possible legislative gaps.)

Pledge Matching Guidance:

2019 GRF Pledges: 2019 State pledges that still require matching can still be matched by following the guidance available on Matching Pledges | The Global Compact on Refugees | UNHCR \(globalcompactrefugees.org\).

Matching new pledges under development for the 2023 GRF: In line with the initial 2023 GRF pledging guidance, and the Note on Pledge Matching in the Context of the GRF 2023 | The Global Compact on Refugees | UNHCR \(globalcompactrefugees.org\), States are strongly encouraged to ensure that all pledges developed are concretized and pre-matched in advance of the next GRF, to the extent feasible. The Multistakeholder Pledge on Economic Inclusion and Social Protection provides the space to facilitate consultations between stakeholders, notably donors and hosting States, for the pre-matching of relevant pledges as they develop.

Definitions:

- Economic Inclusion entails access to labor markets, assets, finance, entrepreneurship, and economic opportunities for all, including non-citizens in addition to vulnerable and under-served groups. Economic inclusion contributes to the self-reliance and resilience of refugees, empowering them to meet their needs in a safe, sustainable, and dignified manner; avoids aid-dependency and negative coping mechanisms; contributes to their host economies; and prepares refugees for their future whether they return home, integrate in their country of asylum, or resettle in a third country.
- Social protection refers to a nationally defined system of policies and programmes that provide equitable access to all people and protect them throughout their lives against poverty and risks to their livelihoods and well-being.³
